

Capacity Building

The MwAPATA Institute continues to build and strengthen the capacity of its researchers through short- and long-term training to sustain its quality research and policy analysis.

Also, to enhance public sector research and policy analysis in Malawi, the Institute extends these activities to key partners by inviting them to seminars and short-term trainings focused on development of working papers, policy briefs, survey design and implementation, data collection, management and analysis, and policy analysis.

This is one way of building capacity of stakeholders in the agricultural sector. The institution further intends to provide capacity-building services to other key stakeholders through its partnerships with academic institutions like the Lilongwe University of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Recordings of the seminars given by experts and experienced researchers, along with additional materials are freely available to anyone via our seminar portal.
